Remanence (Confluence Book 2)

Synopsis

In defiance of NASA, Jane Holloway, the linguist of the Providence expedition, commandeers the alien ship that her crew explored. She sets off to return that ship's marooned navigator to his home world, determined to discover who was behind the genocide that destroyed his original crew. But when she gets there, she finds his world devastated by the same plague. The remaining members of his race, uniquely gifted at navigating the stars, are stranded across the galaxy. And someone, it seems, doesn't want those lost navigators to be found. As Jane unravels the mystery of the plague and works to ensure the survival of Eibrai's race, she discovers that the life of every sentient being in the galaxy may be in jeopardy and the clock is ticking.

And So It Continues By Bob Gelms Jennifer Wells's second book in the Confluence series, Remanence, and the sequel to last year's spectacular debut, Fluency is something to celebrate. For one thing it took everything from the first book and stepped it up a notch or two. This is Sci-Fi that harkins back to the days of the giants, Arthur C. Clarke, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Robert Heinlein,

Isaac Asimov, and Ray Bradbury. Where the science part fully supports a story of characters caught in extraordinary circumstances, developed in three dimensions and basically introducing players you begin to like on many different levels and start to root for, even the aliens. There are writers who write series books in such a way that you don't have to read them in chronological order. They are self contained units. You might be able to get away with it here as well but I'm going to recommend that you read Fluency first. If you don't have a chance to do this or if you read the first book a long time ago, Ms Wells has conveniently supplied a little primer on what happens in the first book. That is a very nice touch. Since both books are interrelated I'm going to write a little bit about the plot of book one. For 75 years a giant spaceship has parked itself in our solar system. NASA has concluded it's a derelict and finally puts together a mission to find out what's up with the ship. Dr. Jane Holloway is a member of the crew and a Linguist. She is included because her expertise is building workable languages out of very little information and she will likely be needed to communicate with anyone who might still be alive or to communicate with the beings that sent the ship. They arrive to many surprises, most of them life threatening.
