Festivals Family And Food

Synopsis

This family favorite is a unique, well-loved source of stories, recipes, things to make, activities, poems, songs, and festivals. Each festival, such as Christmas, Candlemas, and Martinmas, has its own illustrated chapter. Also included are sections on birthdays, rainy days, convalescence, and a birthday Calendar. The perfect present and fun for the whole family, it explores the numerous festivals that children love to celebrate.

Customer Reviews

Wow, my first review! Wish it were more positive cause I'm that kinda gal but here goes anyway. Our family has a hodgepodge of unschooling/Montessori/Waldorf/seasonal and nature-loving accents. Husband is a Montessori teacher and used to teach at Waldorf. We love being outdoors and playing with plants, rocks, trees and stuff. Needless to say we are always looking for earthy creativity in the form of seasonal crafts and working with nature's little treasures to put fun, imaginative and meaningful constructions together. We love the idea of rites of passage, seasonal festivals, seasonal tables (we have a seasonal tree). This book seemed like a good fit. I like All Year Round from what I have seen of a friend's copy, but shy away from outright purchase of it because of the Christian tone (we're Unitarian-types). So I got this instead thinking it would fit a similar scope minus the religious agenda. It seemed like it did. It seems like it should. But it just didn't nail it for me. I'll start with the foods. They are fatty and non-progressive, laden with suggestions for food coloring, mayo, sour cream, tons of butter etc. Alright I confess we're a vegan (and high-raw) family, but it's not like I was expecting vegan or raw recipes. I was hoping for more earthy, harvest-type foods. Fresh pressed fall cider, summer berries harvested in the woods, wild edible herbs and salads from your backyard, local farmer's market stuff, even canning/pickling tips, farm/garden fare and fun holiday goodies like popcorn balls, nutmeg pumpkin soups, cornbread and homemade rosemary or apple breads, cranberry sauce etc. There is some of that stuff here and there but very little of it and none of it natural and whole foods based. I always keep thinking "This food is gross.
